

Alessia Aspide

Alessia Aspide is a PhD researcher at Leiden University, Institute of Political Science. She holds a BSc degree in Economics from the University of Naples Federico II and an MSc degree in Political Economy of Europe from the London School of Economics. She works on a research project titled 'The Micro- foundations of Debt Crises', hosted at the University of Leiden and funded by the European Research Council (ERC). In particular, she studies the political economy of sovereign debt. Her research focuses on how institutions and citizens' preferences interact to shape incentives and constraints in fiscal policymaking. Alessia is also a scholar of the Europaeum Scholars Programme, a multi-disciplinary two-year policy and leadership course that brings together doctoral candidates who share the ambition to "make Europe a better place", connecting academia with the world of policy-making.