

Anna Villa

Anna Villa is researcher in the socio-demographic statistics area at Istat and is currently completing a PhD in Applied Social Research at Sapienza University of Rome, Department of Social and Economic Sciences. She was a visiting student at the European University Institute, Department of Political and Social Sciences, in Fiesole. She was formerly researcher at CNR, Lunaria, Sbilanciamoci! Campaign, ForumPa, Fifth Beat, International Child Development Initiatives (ICDI). Her background is in Statistics and she holds a Master's degree in Local Development and Social Economy from the Faculty of Statistical Sciences. Her research interests range from welfare policies to well-being and quality-of-life indicators, from labour and innovation policies to smart cities and local development issues, with an emphasis on the measurement of complex phenomena, multivariate analysis and methodologies for building synthetic indicators.